

Retirement Communities in Central Florida

Why choose active retirement communities in central Florida?

Florida has been a traditional retirement destination for a long time and will definitely be in the future. And it is quite evident as the great weather and beaches of Florida are the biggest attraction for visitors and residents.

Active retirement communities in central Florida, also known as 55+ communities, age qualified communities or lifestyle communities are communities for people aged 55 and over who are eager to live independently following new fashion. Most of retirement communities in central Florida are age qualified and that means that at least one member of the family should be aged 55 or over. Many of them have plenty of amenities, such as a clubhouse, lifestyle center, indoor or outdoor swimming pool, patios and craft rooms.

The houses are usually built with quality materials and have a master room on the main level, almost no steps and open floor plans. The style of the housing can be of any types and sizes. That's exactly what many seniors are looking for, isn't it?

There are even more advantages of living in one of the CRF retirement communities in central Florida like Vienna Square:

Convenience of maintenance free living

Just like most of the retirement communities in Florida, Vienna Square has a home owners association, which takes care of the household chores, lawns, community amenities, etc.

Everything is at hand

Everything is right here: heated swimming pool, fitness room, ball room, billiards, movie theatre, tennis court, many places to relax, organized social activities and... more.

Staying close to everywhere in Florida

Vienna Square is situated in Winter Haven, central Florida, just between two of the largest cities in Central Florida – Tampa and Orlando. This location provides fast and easy access to all the cultural, social and entertainment facilities: shops, cafés, theatres and recreation centers expected of a metropolitan area.

Fell free to change the pace of your lifestyle

Retirement communities in Florida open the doors towards new experiences, new surroundings, new activities while all your fellow neighbors share the same interests, background and living stage.

Safety and Security assurance

Vienna Square retirement community has a gated entrance and every home and villa has a security system. This makes it safer and secure for its residents.

Better home design options.

Vienna Square offers more comfortable, easier and safer housing for living independent for persons of any age. Villas and single-family houses in Vienna Square are built with livable designs in mind. This has to be a pleasant change from your permanent house, which was most likely built before the development of such an idea. Building with the quality materials and energy saving technologies are supposed to provide trouble free service for many long years. You are not downsizing to a lesser lifestyle, just the opposite, which is very surprising for a lot of people in retirement communities in Central Florida.
